TAFT NOMINATED ON FIRST BALLOT.

Ohio will without doubt have the honor of furnishing the fifth president of the United States.

The Republican National Convention in session in Chicago nominated William Howard Taft on the first ballot, the vote being 701. Those in charge of the Taft movement have for several weeks contended that he would be chosen on the first ballot by a vote of 704, only falling short three votes according to early predictions. Later the nomination was made unanimous.

Foraker received 16, Cannon 61, Hughes 65, Knox 68, Fairbanks 40, LaFollette 25, Roosevelt 3.

Taft's nomination speech was made by Congressman Burton of Cleveland who made the greatest hit of the convention. In the east Burton has not been regarded as a great orator but he dispelled this fact Thursday when he arose to place the name of his fellow citizen for the greatest office in the gift of the people.

The enthusiasm that followed the call of states for the vote was never exceeded in any other convention. The uproar continued for fully half an hour all semblance of order having been abandoned.

The Taft victory has been a notable one. It has been a fight for a Roosevelt successor or that would continue the policies introduced by the present administration.

The nomination also proved that the people were ready to-day for tariff revision and that the trust followers of Foraker, Fairbanks and Cannon have met a terrible defeat.

Secretary Taft insisted on a plank in the platform for the injunction in labor disputes. This was strongly opposed by the trusts and large manufacturers.

Until the time of going to press no candidate for vice-president had been chosen.

SPRINGFIELD'S FOURTH.

Springfield will probably be the Mecca for a large number of people from this territory on July Fourth, as the celebration to be held at the Clark County fair grounds promises to eclipse any thing of the kind ever attempted in the Home city. The celebration is in charge of the Mardi Gras Carnival Association and has the endorsement of the merchants' manufacturers, professional men, secret societies and in fact all organizations and individuals who are boosting for a greater Springfield. A grand street pageant will be a feature of the morning. Free vaudeville and circus acts, horse races and band contests will go to make up the afternoon program. In the evening there will be a sham battle given by the Yolo O. O. F. M. and a magnificent display of fireworks.

AN OLD MAN.

I think of my childhood now far, far away.
 Of years when tender and young;
 I think of the building, my home,
 I should say,
 Where once we meandered and sung.
 To the stair and the attic, a charming place,
 We climbed all delighted to play.
 We sat on the door step and fled in the race,
 'Twas hurry and scurry each day;
 We drank from the fountain that flowed from the rocks;
 And waded its streams with delight;
 And gathered the eggs, and watered the flocks.
 Were busy from morning till night
 We strolled through the fields, and gathered the flowers.
 The finest that were to be seen;
 We listened to bees that hummed all the hours,
 Gathering honey and sweets for their queen.
 I recall now my school days through summer and snow.
 In the old stone schoolhouse we met.
 And lessons were conned, we needed to know.
 Those schoolmates, I'll never forget.
 There was Whitelaw, my chum, bright-eyed and awake.
 Full of innocent mischief and fun.
 And scores of others, named Robert or Jake,
 With mine their school days begun.
 Am I old did you say? Yes, true, it is true!
 My looks are now silvered and white,
 And faces and forms of friends that I knew,
 How many have dropped out of sight!
 I stand all alone like the old forest tree,
 Whose fellows have fallen.
 Companions and playmates nearly happy with me,
 In their graves are sleeping to-day.
 Oh, days of my childhood! Bright, bright, joyous days!
 And the home once happy to me!
 Where I carry you from you, forever, always.

BORN WITHOUT FEAR.

Yet Minds of Children Are Made Bopy
Houses by Parents.

"My little boy is naturally so timid," "My little girl is so easily frightened. We are trying to cure her of it, but she was born with that sensitive nature, and we have to be very careful." So fond parents are sometimes heard to say when a child shows some special form of fear.

Yet, according to Clara Louise
Burnham, who writes in Appleton's Monthly on "How to Keep Your Child From Fear," almost all children are born without fear, and fear is carefully instilled into them
by parents and nurses.

Nature, she says, generally hands
the child to the parents physically perfect, and still more often she hands him over full of optimism and faith. "Nothing is too good for me," is his natural attitude.
Then comes perhaps his first fall.
Straightway the anxious mother rushes to him with a cry and picks him up "with such manner and words that he screams with terror,"
and so the instilling of fear goes on.

"I'm afraid," begins too many of the remarks parents make to their children, says this author. "Christian parents constantly disobey the Bible, which is full of commands to "fear not." "Be not afraid," and while professing to believe the Bible undermine the child's native confidence by teaching it that the world is beset with "snakes and pitfalls to health and happiness." So the child becomes, as it were, mentally slouching and stoop shouldered instead of facing life, as he was born to do, with an upright, joyous carriage.

Fear, disaster, sickness should not be talked of in the presence of children. Even though they may not seem to understand it at the time, it sinks into their little minds. It is a disturbing, a distorting influence.
Even worse in its influence is the mistake of the anxious mother who is always hanging about her child as if ill. "Are you sure you feel all right, dear? Haven't you a pain anywhere?" It need not take much of such insistence to make the healthiest child, if not physically ill, at least nervously upset. The unwise nurse does no end of harm.
"She may be kind and loving," says Mrs. Burnham, "and yet consider the mysterious boy man and the oblivious policeman her legitimate allies in enforcing a paralyzed obedience." And so fresh elements of fear are introduced into the child's horizon.

Another thing this writer strongly denounces is the "strange tradition" that into every pantomime or play for the entertainment of children, most definitely must be introduced some "scary" scene. "The ghosts and goblins and the witch and the giant and the ogre and the baby heart," she makes a special remonstrance concerning Captain Hook and his pirate band in "that otherwise charming play, 'Peter Pan.' No child under twelve should have his nervous system shocked by these gentlemen and their awful captain," she says, and she describes how at one performance she saw a child with its head buried in its mother's lap, begging piteously
to know if "the pirates had gone."

A Little to One Side.
"You think you have unusual presence of mind," said Mrs. Jenks to her husband in a tone which was somewhat tinged by the recollection of her recent wrongs connected with a forgotten basket of kindlings.
"I do in reason," said Mr. Jenks boldly, turning his back to the wood box.

"Humph," said Mrs. Jenks. "Well, while you've been two hours and a half at the store getting me a yeast cake I've been reading the paper a few minutes to rest my back after doing a lot of work no woman ought to have put on her, and I've been reading of a man that really had presence of mind. What should you do first off if you saw a man fall out of a balloon way up in the air?"
"First off," said Mr. Jenks, turning a calm gaze on his inquisitor, "I should wait to see where he landed,
meanwhile standing from under if possible."—Youth's Companion.

Bills and Coins.
All kinds of guesses have been made as to the number of one dollar bills that would be required to equal the weight of a five dollar gold piece.
The guesses range, as a rule, from 50 to 500, and when a humorist in the subterranean asked a visitor which he would prefer, all the five dollar gold pieces he could lift or the same weight in one dollar bills, the visitor immediately votes for bills, imagining, as he does, that the proportion will be about ten to one in favor of one dollar bills as against the gold.
As a matter of fact, there is very little difference between the weight of one five dollar gold piece and five one dollar bills. To be exact, just six and a half bills will balance the five dollar gold piece.

Put Your Money In a New Country

The Pacific Coast extension of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway now under construction, opens to the settler thousands of acres of excellent agricultural land. The new country in Adams, Hettinger, and Bowman Counties, North Dakota, and Butte County, South Dakota, is now reached by the new track. The soil is a dark loam with clay subsoil, and produces in abundance wheat, oats, barley, speltz, flax, corn and potatoes. The land is well adapted to farming, good water is found at a depth of from twenty to fifty feet, and the whole country is underlaid with lignite coal that outcrops along the streams, and in most cases can be had for the digging.

The climate is healthful, the air is dry and invigorating, and the percentage of sunshiny days is high. Outdoor work can be done almost every day in the year. Rainfall is amply sufficient to raise the crops. Regular mail service has been established, the roads are good, rural telephone lines traverse the country, and automobiles are in common use. The deeded land in this district sells for from $10 to $18 per acre. There are many instances this year where the crop equalled in value the cost of the land.

In Butte County, South Dakota, there is considerable government land open for homestead entry. Government land offices are maintained at Lemmon, Hettinger and Bowman, where filings and final proofs may be made. All of these towns are on the new line of the

Chicago Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway

In Montana, the new railroad traverses good farming land. It has been demonstrated that big crops of grain may be raised. Along the Yellowstone and Mussellshell rivers, the water is used for irrigation, and phenomenal yields of alfalfa, sugar beets, and grain are always certain. In the Judith Basin near Lewistown, Montana, is one of the most remarkable sections to be found on the new line. Under natural rainfall, the famous bench lands produced this year an average of 35 bushels of hard wheat to the acre, and the price was 94 cents per bushel. The basin contains about 1500 square miles and is sparsely settled. Some government land still remains open for settlement. A government land office is maintained at Lewistown. In Fergus County, outside the Judith Basin, is one of the greatest stock countries in the world, and good ranches can be purchased at a reasonable figure.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co. has established an immigration department for the purpose of assisting in the settlement and development of the new lands now being opened. Pamphlets descriptive of its resources will be forwarded free on request.

ON SIGNAL WATCH.

One of the Experiences Which Enrage a Young Sailor.

In "Three Years Behind the Guns," in St. Nicholas, is recounted one of those experiences on ship-board that make a young sailor's heart hot within him:

I was on signal watch on the after bridge. An ordnance officer four feet away stood looking shoreward through his binoculars as the admiral's barge rowed straight for the ship. At the proper moment he commanded, "Bugler, call the guard." Then all the red tape required to get an admiral aboard was unwound. This accomplished, Lieutenant Dorn came at me fairly foaming at the mouth, "What are you doing on the bridge?" he roared.

"I am on signal watch, sir."

"Then why did you not report the admiral's launch coming?"

"Because I saw it, sir."

"Because I saw it! What right have you to say I saw it?"

"I saw you looking at it through your glasses, sir."

"You don't know that I was looking at the admiral's barge. You have no right even to think what I am looking at. Your duty was to have reported to me what you saw coming toward the ship. Failing to do so, you shall answer on Saturday morning. I put you down for carelessness, disobedience, neglect of duty and insolence."

I swallowed my heart and my rage, as I have done many a time and oft since I have worn this uniform, and in fancy I saw myself go down into the brig for thirty days. The big means handcuffs or ankle irons, a diet of two hard tacks and a tumbler of water three times a day, with full rations every fifth day. I have seen men come out of the brig looking like the end of a forty days' fast in a monastery. I have seen men in for three days wearing double irons. They looked like pirates. Their crime was smoking out of hours.

To return to my own case, on Friday night Lieutenant Dorn sent for me and gave me a kindly talk, winding up with the promise that he would make a sailor out of me. I was on the shore list for the next morning, but for reasons of my own I carried on the ship. This same officer, noticing me, asked why I was there. I answered:

"Broke, sir."

He told me to go to his room and where to find $10, which I was to take, get ashore as quickly as possible and not to forget to return it on the next pay day.

"Awkward For Sanderson."

Sanderson was on a visit to Simpkins, and in due course naturally he was shown the family album.

"I see," said Simpkins as he turned the pages, "that's your wife's second cousin's Aunt Susan. Poor old soul. She had the most remarkable nose I ever saw. It was the shape of a note of interrogation. And that's Cousin James, and that's a friend of ours, and that's Ah! Now, who do you think that is?"

"Don't know," said Sanderson. "Well, that's my wife's first husband, my boy!"

"Great Scott! What a perfectly brainless looking ass! But excuse me, old fellow. I didn't know your wife was a widow when you married her."

"She wasn't," said Simpkins stiffly. "That, sir, is a portrait of myself at the age of twenty."—London Telegraph.

"Mother."

One of the first words that a baby says is mamma or mother, and it is not strange, therefore, to find it one of the first and simplest words in every language. There is no word easier for a child to say than "ma" unless it be "pa." In Hebrew and Arabic "ma" is "em" and "am." It is "mam" in Welsh and "moder" in Anglo-Saxon. In other languages it is slightly different, but near enough like our own "mother" to make it an almost universal word, so that a child crying in any language could be understood in almost any other language. Here are a few of the names: "Madri" in Persian, "matr" in Sanskrit, "mater" in Greek, "mater" in Latin, "madre" in Spanish, "mere" in French, "moder" in Swedish, "moder" in Danish, "moder" in Dutch, "mutter" in German, "mate" in Russian, "matshair" in Celtic.

Home of the Orange.

Careful research has shown that India was the country from which the orange spread to western Asia and eventually to Europe and the Americas. Oranges are at present found wild in many parts of northern India. Cultivated from a remote period in Hindustan, they were carried to southwestern Asia by the Arabs probably before the close of the ninth century. They spread ultimately through the agency of the same race to Africa, Spain and possibly Sicily, following the tide of Mohammedan conquest.

Nailmaking.

A common nail is an excellent illustration of the difference between old and new methods. Formerly the metal was cut into strips and then forged into shape with hammers, and an expert took about one and one-half minutes for each nail. Today they are made of steel and are lighter and stronger. Strips are cut with steam shears and fed into automatic nail machines. One man tends three machines, each machine dropping a nail every second.

We add our personal guarantee to everything claimed for it and would be pleased to submit prices.

Don't fail to see us before buying your fencing. Don't put it off until you are ready to use it, but place your order in advance, as we cannot carry all sizes in stock.

NEW ERA WOULD DAWN

With the Enactment of National Law to Govern Corporations.

ORDER, STABILITY, PROSPERITY

Lack of Control by Federal Power of Corporations Doing an Interstate Business a Glaring Weakness. Freest Legislation Against Corporations by Many States.

Columbus, O., (Special.)—Ohio business men to a great extent are much interested in the proposed enactment of a national law to govern the corporate organization of all companies doing an interstate business. In nothing is the eagerness of President Roosevelt of setting upon public questions of great strategic importance more manifest than in his earnest advocacy of the enactment of a Federal statute to govern the incorporation of combinations of capital doing an interstate business.

At present there is of course no national corporation law, and thus there are 46 different sets of laws for the incorporation and regulation of business corporations, each state having its own laws on this subject and all of them greatly at variance. In some states, as in Ohio, a company can be incorporated for the performing of but one general purpose, while in other states the laws are so liberal in regard to the incorporation of companies that a charter will be issued for the performing of a multitude of purposes, not one of which may be related to the other.

So long as these companies do not violate the Federal statutes in regard to combinations in restraint of trade, the giving or taking of rebates, etc., they are answerable only to the state by which it is issued. They may be doing a business which reaches every state in the Union, but the Federal laws are powerless unless, as said, they violate some of the Federal anti-trust laws, and then they can only be fined, as the general government has no authority to oust them from their corporate existence.

President Roosevelt has long seen this weakness in the lack of control by the Federal power of these corporations which transact an interstate business. Almost since he first began to speak on public questions he has favored a national incorporation law, and the taking over by the general government of the right to bring these combinations of capital to corporate existence. In his most forcible style he brought this important subject to the attention of the congress in his message of April 27, 1908. The president in this message said that his personal belief is that ultimately we shall have to adopt a national incorporation law, even if such a step is found impossible of carrying into effect at the present time. The interstate commerce commission legislation, he said, has worked admirably, and has benefited the public and the honestly managed and wisely conducted railroads at will.

The president further states that it is clear that the principles employed to remedy the great evils in the business world have worked well and may now be employed to correct the evils that further commercial growth has brought so prominently to the surface. He asserts that it is clear that unless a national incorporation law can forthwith be enacted, some body or bodies in the executive service should be given power to pass upon any combination or agreement in relation to interstate commerce, and every such combination or agreement, if it is proved should be treated as in violation of law and be prosecuted accordingly. He asserted that the issuance of the securities of any combination doing an interstate business should be under the supervision of the national government.

One of the great captains of industry of the country, in a statement made before the industrial commission in 1909, said that in his opinion the legislation which would most improve the condition of the country would be in the direction of national or Federal incorporation. He declared that if such corporations should be made possible under such fair restrictions and provisions as should rightfully attach to them, any branch of business could be freely entered upon and the talk of monopoly would be gone forever.

The present system of state corporations, almost as varied in its provisions as the number of states, is vexatious alike to the business community and to the authorities of the several states. The Federal law need not take away from the states the right of taxation or police regulation, but it would make it possible for business organizations to know the general terms on which they could conduct their business in the country at large. The lack of uniformity in the laws of the various states, as affecting business corporations, is one of the most vexatious features attending the business life of any of the great corporations of the country today, and all of them would heartily welcome the enactment of a Federal corporation law.

In some states it is possible to incorporate a company for practically any purpose, and not incur thereby any responsibility for the conduct of its business. The most plain and bare-faced swindle may be incorporated if the promoters have the filing fee, and it will go out with the sanction of the state, which practically is aiding and abetting the commission of crime.

With a national incorporation law, it will not be believed for a moment that the congress of the United States or the executive officers of the government would ever prostitute themselves to the enactment of such loose incorporation laws as are found in many of the states. No sane business man believes that there will ever again in the Federal government be too much laxity in the control and management of corporations.

It may seem paradoxical, but it is true, that the corporations will escape severe and probably unfair future control by insisting upon a thorough and sensible present control of their corporate acts and functions. At the present time there is much Federal legislation against corporations by many states, and, while this will not last, it will bring with it and leave behind it disorder and loss.

What a wonderful advantage would result if the legitimate businesses of the country everywhere were controlled by and subject to one legislative body enacting stringent and effective, but not transient and contradictory incorporation laws, instead of having this work done by the legislatures of 46 states. To many business men it seems as if a new era in business would dawn if the Federal government could thus control corporations by stable and uniform laws that will encourage and protect all legitimate industries, and thus force the promoter to quit, the swindler to withdraw or go to jail, and give some measure of protection to the poor deluded investor who sees in an advertisement or prospectus the competence which he fears he will not be able to secure by daily toil.

It is the Federal government that the dishonest promoter fears and not the state governments. The enactment of Federal laws for the incorporation and regulation of monopolistic and competitive corporations would serve as models for the states and the attempt to formulate and enact such laws would develop an educational discussion of great value.

Business men believe it is wiser and safer for the Federal government to permit no corporation to engage in interstate commerce which is not incorporated under federal laws. In its attempt to control interstate commerce, if the Federal government should merely license the state corporations, a double jurisdiction would arise which would bring about conflict between federal and state governments and would aggravate rather than soften the jealousy between the two jurisdictions.

The first Federal incorporation law should be made simple, making the first step short but firm between the idea of state and that of national incorporation. Wisdom and experience will suggest in the course of time the additions to the law which may be found necessary. There should be one law for the incorporation of monopolies and another for the incorporation of competitive businesses, and each law should be administered by a corporate board of the executive government. The incorporation and regulatory laws should identify all transactions by their generic character, not by their size, the amount of capital employed or the number of persons associated in making the transaction or the form of its organization.

One of the great business bodies of the country declared recently in a series of resolutions that one of the most important factors for the stability and prosperity of business affairs in the country in the future is the federal corporation of all interstate commerce corporations. As a result, corporations of a public and semi-public character, the stocks of which are listed on the exchanges for sale, will be so justly conducted that workmen and citizens of small means and the people generally will find investments in them at least as safe and profitable as the individual enterprises which are being superseded by such corporations. If the congress should go no further, it was the judgment of this association that all railroad and other transportation companies engaged in interstate commerce should be compelled to incorporate under federal laws.

COMPOUND INTEREST

The trouble with most advertisers is that they expect immediate returns of large proportions. One prominent advertiser illustrates the principle of advertising in this way:

"The money expended for advertising is the same as if placed at interest. The profits from the advertising are virtually the interest on the investment."

"The sums spent for advertising are properly chargeable to capital account because the resulting good will is something that has value, which, if the advertising has been properly done, can usually be sold for the face value of the investment."

"The rate of interest is determined by the skill with which the investment is made."

"Just as the quickest way to increase invested wealth is by compounding the interest, just so the quickest way to realize results from advertising is to compound the returns."—Advertising Experience.

A Whimsical Wager.
A young Austrian nobleman who had the reputation of being a brilliant talker made a wager with a club friend that during the first year of his marriage he would preserve a rigid silence when in her presence and, in fact, would not speak a single word to her. This resolution he faithfully kept; but, owing to the fact that the wager was not made public, some very serious consequences ensued. His wife, believing him to be insane, privately sent a brain specialist to examine the taciturn gentleman. He was on the point of being conveyed to a sanitarium when he disclosed the reason of his behavior. When the year was up he claimed the wager, which was duly paid.
